THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION.

ATLANTA, GA., TUESDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 24, 1891. TEN PAGES.

ON JUNE 7TH

The Republican National Convention Will Meet

IN THE FAR-OFF CITY OF MINNEAPOLIS The Campaign of 1892 Now Fully in the Swing, WITH BLAINE AS REPUBLICAN LEADER.

The National Executive Committee Has an All-Day Meeting, in Which Boodle Plays a Part.

Washington, November 3.—[Special.]— Minneapolis gets the repul ican national convention.

It will be held June 7th.
General James S. Clarkson will manage the republican presidential campaign next

That is the story of the action of the repub-lican national committee in a natshell.

Quay and Dudley Out.

The republican national committee met this The resignations of Quay and morning. The resignations of Quay and Dudley as chairman and treasurer were accepted. The action of the executive committee in naming J. S. Clarkson, of Iowa, as chairman and William Barbour, of New York, as treasurer was approved. One hour was granted each city to present its claims for the Garrett A. Hobart, of New Jersey, was elected vice chairman of the committee. Then Dinnis T. Flynn's credentials as committeeman from Oklahoma were approved.

There was, perhaps, never such a bitter struggle for the location of a convention. It lasted from 11 o'clock this morning until midlated from 11 o'clock this morning and night. All the cities which put in bids worked hard and spent a great deal of money, but it is was apparent this morning that the only two cities really in the race were Minneapolis and Cincinnati. The trans-Mississippi cities had formed an iron-clad agreement to hang to-gether. The logic of their claims, too, was good. And they made the landing hand-somely.

San Francisco's Claims.

Congressman McKenna opened the speechmaking by presenting the claims of San Francisco as the place for holding the next convention, and was followed by M. H. DeYoung, of The San Francisco Chronicle, who also filed the Golden Gate's $50,000 bond to carry out its offer of defraying the expenses, including the expenses of delegates and a trip to Yosemite Valley.
Francis G. Newlands, of Nevada, also spoke for the Pacific coast.

Chicago's Promise. Mr. Campbell, of Islinois, a member of the committee, submitted on the part of Chicago the resolution adopted some weeks ago by the business men to the effect that Chicago was not a competitor for the convention, but would do what she had slways done if Belected.

The claims of Detroit were put forth by exSenator Palmer, Congressmen Brewer and Allen and Senator Stockbridge, Minneapolis Wants It.

Senator Washburn, Chief Clerk Johnson, of the United States senate; Governor Merriam, of Minnesota; Senator Casey and Committee-man Johnson, of North Dakota, told why Minneapolis should be chosen.

And St. Louis, Too. Chauncey I. Filley, of Missouri, presented St. Louis as a good town for the reason that he should be embarrassed as a member of the committee, if he did not say something about

Omaha Puts In an Oar-Judge C.R. Scott, in urging Omaha's claims, went somewhat out of the beaten path by not speaking sweet nothings of other cities, and, instead of scaring New York and Chicago, the latter he remarked could not break faith with the western people, who had given it the world's fair, and go unwhipped of Senator Manderson and Senator Casey, of Wyoming, and John M. Thurston also urge Omaha's selection. Shepard and Fassett for New York.

Elliott F. Shepard, Senator Hiscock, Senator Hawley, of Connecticut, and J. Sloat Fassett, the last of whom was received with tumultuous cheers, urged New York's selection principally on the ground that it would help the ticket.

Foraker and McKinley for Cincinnati.

Governor-ele Ex-Governor Foraker and Governor-elect McKinley were both loudly cheered when they presented Cincinnati's advantages. Pittsburg's Claims.

Mayor Gurley and Congressman Stone urged the claims of Pittsburg. Chattanooga Has a Champion.

The speech-making was closed by Colonel Bradley, of Kentucky, urging that Chattanoogs, Tenn., be selected.

The Wires Were Down. During the progress of the fight today this city was practically isolated from the outside world, as far as telegraphic facilities were concerned. A wild hurricane of rain and hail passed over the city, demolishing houses and wrecking the telegraph wires. Not a word of the meeting of the committee could be flashed out of Washington during the day. But the out of Washington during the lay. But afternoon papers did not miss a great deal.

The proceedings before the committee today, up to the time Ohio appeared upon the scene, after the recess this evening lacked spirit.

San Francisco, Detroit, Minneapolis, Omaha and New York had their innings before the recess. They each put forward their crack orators, and the burden of their song was that the rapublican party was readily control. the republican party was rapidly going to pieces in their sections, and unless something was done to stimulate the republicans the party might as well hang its harp on the willows. All the western orators told how the west was slipping away from them, and unless a reyival of some kind was held in the country. beyond the Mississippi, at which the mourner beyond the Mississippi, at which the mouraers could be brought to the anxious bench, they would not answer for the result. Mike De Young, of San Francisco, offered a bond of $50,000, free railroad fare, free Pullman cars, free hotel bills and a free trip to the Yosemite valley to each delegate with credentials, and a twenty-five-dollar rate for everybody else who wanted to come and bring his wife or somebody else's wife—without credentials.

wanted to come and bring his wife or somebody else's wife-without credentials.

Some Rash Promises.

Omaha and Minneapolis promised to bring the golden northwest back into line if the convention was held out there, and Detrait offered to show the delegates where Tecumseh was buried. Senator Hiscock and J. Sloat Fassett, the eloquent young man who fell outside the breastworks as New York's gubernatorial candidate in the late election, declared that New York would decide the battle next year, and plead like drowning Cassar for the

A Little Confession Obsuncey I. Filly, the republican boss of St. Leuis, also startled the assembled hosts by purchased Indiana in 1888. Filly butchers the queen's English badly, but there was no mistaking what he meant when he boasted, in stentorian tones, that St. Louis sent $28,500 to Indiana two weeks before the election, and was the first first research to the second sent section. and was the first city to respond to "Blocks-of-Five" Dudley's appeal for crisp two-dollar Blaine's Name Cheered.

The principal feature of the meeting before the recess this evening was the demonstration made whenever Blaine's name was mentioned. Every one here now believes that Blaine will be a candidate, and whenever there was even a remote reference to the plumed knight the rafters rang with cheers and applause. Napoleon McKinley and Governor Foraker's name seen Mckinley and Governor Foraker's names were also cheered during the proceedings to-day, but the great Ohio demonstration was reserved for tonight, when Colonel Conger, as the committeeman from Ohio, announced that Cincinnate had selected from the picket lines Foraker and McKinley to present her case. When ex-Governor Foraker stepped upon the stand, everything that had previously occurred in the way of demonstration was, com-pletely eclipsed. The audience rose to its feet, and for three or four minutes the ladies waved handkerchiefs while the men swung their hats and everybody yelled and shouted and cheered Governor Foraker's speech was the best of the day. A gifted orator, full of impassioned ele-quence, the ex-governor's words thrilled his audience and made their blood tingle. He was at his best, and time and again he was inter-rupted with the most vociferous applause. He began with a eulogy of Mr. Fassett, the new secretary of the committee and the de, feated candidate for governor of New York,

Foraker's Speech.

Foraker's speech was remarkable for the endorsement he gave McKinley and Sherman. After stating that Cincinnati would not decry other cities, he said, turning to Fassett:
"You are precisely the kind of a republican the Ohio people like. You are a fighting republican. Some day you will be crowned with victory. Good men have been defeated before." [Grant and precise."] fore." [Great and prolonged applause.]

Then, after speaking of Cincinnati's central location near the center of population, he con-location near the center of population, he continued:

"The convention was not needed to carry Ohio. Thank God! Ohio was a republican state. It had had its campaign of education, and the people of Ohio had spoken upon the questions to be met next year by the country. After a brilliant campaign William McKinley had been elected governor,—[applause]—and the vote by which he had been elected governor,—[applause]—and the vote by which he had been elected was a test vote upon next year's issues. All the other cities had trouble which could be cured only by the convention. But as five of them were troubled, why cure one at the expense of the others? Better have them all come down to Cincinnati, where there was pure, unadulterated republicanism that would regenerate all of them and cure other political aimments. You wouldn't hear tell of the Farmers' Alliance in Ohio. The Sockless Simpson was glad to get out alive. Whiskered Peffer tarried not long.

"The republicans met them on the threshold."

"The republicans met them on the threshold "The republicans met them on the threshold when they came boasting of their intention of overthrowing that grand old man, John Sherman, and draye them out discomitted, disheartened and overthrown. [Great applause.] Republicans of Ohio wanted no such monkey ticket. They believed in the principles of the republican party as exemplified by Lincoln, upheld by Grant and represented by Benjamin partison in the white house today." [Applause.]

McKinley's Remarks. Mr. McKinley, in the course of his presenta-tion of Cincinnati's claims, made the follow-tion of Cincinnati's claims, made the following reference to the south:

Was it not worth while to try to carry some of the republican states of the south? West Virginia was just as good a republican state today as Ohio, and if the republican party did half the work in West Virginia and in Tennessee that it did in Ohio and New York, both those states would give their electoral vote for the republican candidate. Let the committee put the convention in Cincinnati, and these southern states would be put in touch with it. Southern republicans would be encouraged. They would come to Cincinnati.

put in touch with it. Southern republicans would be encouraged. They would come to Cincinnati and take in some of the inspiration that would be found at that great national convention wherever it was to be held.

On the questions of protective tariff and of the honest dollar the republican party stood united, but it stood just as united on the question of insisting that every citizen of the country should have the right to vote, and the right to have his vote counted. [Applause.] That was one of the great cardinal principles of the republican party. That should never be forgotten, and no republican speech should ever be made in any part of the union that did not insist on the recognition of that constitutional right of suffrage in every section and corner of the land.

Representative Evans, of Tennessee, intro-union that did not insist on the recognition of that constitutional right of suffrage in every section and corner of the land.

Representative Evans, of Tennessee, introduced Colonel Bradley to speak for the new south, for Chattanooga, Tenn. Colonel Bradley said:

There are no more loyal people on earth than the republicans of the south. They were republicans when it cost something to be so. The loyal part of Tennessee—East Tennessee—sent more soldiers into the union army than any corresponding area of this country. After the war the republicans of the north had forgotten their southern brethren in the old whig states of Kentucky and Tennessee, and left them to work alone for their own salvation. But they had with their own salvation. But they had with their own salvation. But they had with their own salvation. But they had strength as shown by the figures. There was the place for republican missionary work. While the vote was dwindling out west, it was increasing in the south, and if such men as McKinley and Foraker and Fassett and others came down and preached republican doctrine there would be the grandest revival on earth. Hotel accommodations? Why, in 1863 Chattanooga had accommadated 200,000, and with them were Grant and Sherman and Thomas. Let the convention come and the people of Chattanooga would build them a wigwam way up on Lookout mountain, where Old Thomas fought his battle in the clouds. Now there came from the south, from the land of bondage came the cry: "Come and help as. Give the south a chance in God's name." The day would then come when there would uprise in the south a Joshua to lead the republican hosts to victory across the Ohio river.

The Balloting.

First Ballot-Minneapolis, 13; New York, 9; San Francisco, 8; Omaha, 5; Chattanooga, 4; Cincinnati, 4; Pittsburg, 2; Detroit, 1; St.

The second ballot showed only slight The second ballot showed only slight changes, but when the third was reached all except five cities dropped out, with this result: Omaha, 4; Minneapolis, 13; Cincinnati, 12; San Francisco, 7; New York, 10. On the fourth ballot Cincinnafi got two votes from New York, leading with 15 votes. San Francisco also got one from New York.

On the next bailot Minneapolis went up to 17, San Francisco falling back. Sixth Ballot—Minneapolis, 20; Cincinnati, 15; New York, 5; Omaha, 4; San Francisco, 3. Seventh and Last Baliot-Minneapolis, 29; Cincinnati, 15; New York, 3; San Francisco, withdrawn. So Minneapolis will be the meeting place of the next convention.

June 7th was fixed as the date of the opening day of the convention.

An Epidemie of Diphtheria.
St. Louis, Mo., November 23.—Diphtheria is raging in Belleville, ill., and amounts almost to an epidemie. It broke out in September, and since that time its ravages have been very severe and a large number of deaths have occurred. It has assumed such alarming proportions that a large number of citizens have withdrawn their children from the public and private schools, it is estimated that there are between two hundred and these hundred cases in Bulwrite and vicinity.

THE SPEAKERSHIP.

Representative Bynum Has Retired from the Speakership Race

IN THE INTEREST OF ROGER Q. MILLS. Governor Hill Working for the Election of Crisp.

AN INCIDENT OF THE GRADY MEMORIAL.

The Charge That Governor Hill Objected to the Presence of Confederate Flags Denounced as False.

WASHINGTON, November 23.—[Special.]— It is announced that Representative Bynum will give out a statement tonight, or tomorrow, withdrawing from the fight for the speakership. It is not known yet where strength will go, but it will probably be divided. Some time ago a conference was held between him and Mr. Mills to discuss a proposition for the retirement of both him and Mills for the purpose of combining their forces on Mr. Holman, but this fell through. Whether the retirement of Mr. Bynum at this time is in the interest of any one in particular has not yet been disclosed. Mr. Mills's friends still speak confidently of his chances, but the public impression seems to be that he will not have as many votes on the first ballot as he at first expected. Mr. Springer is said to be booming a little in the west. Mr. Crisp's friends say they expect him to be nominated on the first or second ballot. They say that their claim that he now has 107 votes is a very conservative claim, and they go into detail as to the number he will get in each state with practical certainty.

Mr. Bynum Has Retired. WASHINGTON, November 28.—[Special.]—Mr. Bynum, of Indiana, has come out in the expected card, withdrawing from the speaker hip.

He says he doesn't know how the Indiana Mills, and urges all other democrats to do so, because Mills represents tariff reform more prominently than any other congressman.

prominently than any other congressman.

In this card Mr. Bynum says:

I never pressed my candidacy, and consented only to the use of my name until it became evident that the contest was narrowed down between Mills and Crisp.

Mr. Bynum Talks.

"Whom will the delegation now suppert?"

"In Indiana there is no boss rule. Every representative votes and speaks for himself, and you will have to see the representatives to ascertain their preferences. As for myself, I shall heartily support Mills. While many of the candidates are strong tariff reformers, none so strongly represents the position of the party so strongly represents the position of the party on this question as Mr. Mills. He is known to on this question as Mr. Mills. He is known to the people as a prominent figure in the house on this question, and his defeat would, in a great measure, be accepted as an abandonment of the issue. The tariff is the issue upon which we must win in 1892, and there should be no semblance of wavering of halting at this critical period. Unless the party stands firmly and aggressively in favor of this issue, the farmers of the northwest, who gave us such saveeping victories in 1890, will become discouraged and may abandon the hope of success through the organization of our party."

The master hand of David B. Hill is seen quietly working in the interest of Crisp for the speakership, and it is evident that through his influence and that of his friends the Georgian will receive almost the solid vote of New York. A day or two ago Governor Hill was asked if he did not think Mills stood a good show for the speakership; whereupon he remarked in a significant way, "What's the matter with Hill has been here for several days, arranging for his quarters, but it is not thought that he will begin his term as United States senator until the 1st of January, on which date Flower will be sworn in as governor of New York.

Hill Denounces a Lie. A correspondent signing himself "S" writes to The Albany, N. Y., Journal, a bitter repub lican organ, that when Governor Hill arrived in Atlanta to deliver the memorial address a the unveiling of the Grady monument, he found that preparatious had been made for a display of the stars and bars not only through out the procession and in the decoration the buildings along the route, but also around the monument. He entered a decided protest, flatly refusing, it was reported, to participate in the exercises in honor of the lamented Grady unless the objectionable flags were removed from the neighborhood of the monument, from the procession and along the route. It was the objection of Governor Hill alone that prevented the display of rebel bunting, and confined the demonstration for the lost cause to a few tattered relics of the rebellion carried in the procession.

Governor Hill was shown this and saked Governor Hill was shown this and saked about it by a correspondent of The Constitution. He denounced it as infamously faise in every particular, saying: "I did not even hear anything about confederate flags at the unveiling of the Grady monument until afterwards, when the news came by way of The New York Mail and Express. I did not see a confederate flag while I was in Atlanta, and did not know that there was one in the procession. There were certainly notes on the did not know that there was one in the pro-cession. There were certainly none on the houses around the monument. The thought of a confederate flag never entered my head until I saw the mean and vindictive publica-tion of The Mail and Express."

ment Wholly False.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., November 23.—[Special.]—President McDowell, of the state alliance, L. K. Taylor, editor of The Toiler, and Ben Terrell, of Texas, arrived here this morning from Indianapolis. President McDowell denies that the third party movement was endorsed. He says:

"The third party, or people's party, was not mentioned in the meeting at all. I talked with some of the western and northern delegates, and they fully agree with me that our order cannot take action endorsing any party. The opinion was unanimous that the alliance must remain a non-partisan body."

"Then, how did these reports get out?" was asked.

The Body of the Dead Actor Laid in a Greenwood Cemetery Vault.

New York, November 23.—The body of William J. Florence found a temporary resting place in the vault at Greenwood cemetery, whither it was taken after the funeral services in St. Agnes's church, and there it will remain until the arrival from Europe of the widow of the actor, when it will be conveyed to its final resting place in the family plat. In the early morning there was but little about the Fifth Avenue hotel to denote the solemn occasion. Soon after 9 o'clock the pallbearers began to appear. Mr. Palmer was the first of these gentlemen to arrive, while Mr. Edwin Booth was last. The casket was closed about midnight, after the members of the family had taken their last leave.

When the body was taken from the Twenty-third street entrance of the hotel, about halfpast 9 o'clock, there was a large crowd on the street. Palm leaves, sent by Mr. Augustin Daly, were riaced at the head, while the gift of Mrs. Barney Williams, a similar offering, was placed at the foot of the casket. The casket was taken by six undertaker attendants from the hotel to the hearse, preceded by the palibearers, with Edwin Booth and A. M. Palmer in the lead. Then followed the family, consisting of Mrs. Norman Wyard, Mrs. Barney Williams, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Mitchel., Inspector Cohen and family and Benjamin Conlin and family, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Seymour, Mrs. Shepherd, Mr. and Mrs. H. Pray, Mr. and Mrs. Martin. The most direct route to the church was taken, and the remains reached there promptly at 10 o'clock. At the church the casket, preceded by the pallbearers, Edwin Booth and A. M. Palmer, William, Winter, John Hecksher, Charles N. Vilas, C. F. Fearing, Clayton McMichael and John Russell Young, was carried to the sitar. Mass was sung by Rev. Henry Pratt, of St. Columbia church. After the services at the church the remains were interred in Green-wood cemetery.

THE BURST WATER MAIN Throws Thousands Out of Employment by Threws Thousands Out of Employment by the Stoppage of Works.

Brooklyn, November 23.—The city is having a water famine, due to the bursting of the conduit Saturday. The Brooklyn bridge cable is stopped and locomotives are used to shove people across the bridge. All factories, elevators and hotels using steam have had their water turned off, and, as a result, 50,000 people have no work. It will be at least tomorrow before the necessary repairs can be used. before the necessary repairs can be made.

The Firemen Did Good Work. Before noon a fire broke out in a three-story and basement brown-stone house at 237 Carroll street, Brooklyn. The firemen had no water, and began tearing down houses on either side to prevent the spreading of the flames. Before much work had been done, however, the flames were subdued and the fire extinguished.

Water Turned On. Water Turned On.

The residents of Brooklyn breathed a sigh of relief when it was announced by Commissioner Adams tonight that the break in the conduit had been repaired, and at 8:20 o'clock water was turned on, and the water famine was at an end. The cable on the big bridge was started soon after, and trains were again propelled by that means, instead of by the steam motors that had been in use throughout the day.

The Day on the New York Cotton Ex-

New York, November 23.—The Sun reports: Futures opened buoyant, presently declined, partially recovered, presently declined, partially recovered, closing steady at three to six points advance. Liverpool again disappointed the bears in making a considerable advance in futures. A bull remarked that it looks as if Liverpool and all Europe were saying to us: "You have raised a cotton crop of excellent quality; you are selling it very cheaply, and we cannot make a great mistake if we pile up a few thousand bales at current prices," to which a bear replied that they said the same thing last January and we all know with what results. The decline that followed the early advance was due to large receipts at change-Fluctuation of Futures. the early advance was due to large receipts at the ports, figures from Galveston and New Orleans being delayed by the storms and coming excessively large. Very full estimates were also made for tomorrow. But it is evident that in the northern belt the movement is falling off, feeling, no doubt, this early the effect of killing frosts in October. Some of the southern markets were dearer and our bulls feel more confident of their position than they have for some time past. Spot cotton was dull.

Taking in the People.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., November 23.—[Special.]—Charles A. Hollie is the name of a slick artist from St. Louis, whose victims in this city have just found out that he is a scoundrel. He came representing himself as agent of the St. Louis Library Association, which sold books to members at a discount of 30 per cent. In order to become a member, the victim was required to subscribe for some publication of which Hollie was agent, such as Harper's, Puck, etc., and pay eash. These subscriptions were also at a large discount. A great many people here took the bait. Nothing has been heard of Hollie nor his publications, and all letters addressed to the St. Louis Library. FALL OF FONSECA.

The People Rise in Arms and Overthrow the Dictator.

THERE WAS VERY LITTLE FIGHTING

Capitulation. GENERAL REJOICING OF THE PEOPLE.

Attack Upon the Arsenal and Its

Provinces Not Heard From, but It Is Thought the News Will Be Joyful.

RIO JANEIRO, November 23.-The inhabitants of this city whose sympathies have been with the congressional party have at last thrown off all guise of adherence to the existing government, and have openly declared their determined opposition to the dictatorship offGeneral Da Fonseca and their resolve that he must abandon the presidency which he has held for only a comparatively brief period.
Like Dom Pedro, President Da Fonseca has quietly yielded to the demands of the people that the executive of the Brazilian government be deposed from his high office. The people of this city rose in arms against the dic-tator's government today, and the uprising has thus far been very successful, and the in-surgents have accomplished the ends for which they have so long been secretly planning.

The Attack On the Arsenal. Among the first things the revolutionists did among the trials the revolutionise that this morning was to increase their store of arms and ammunition. A strong force of insurgents made an attack on the naval arsenal, and after weak and only half-hearted effort on the fart of those stationed at the place to repulse the into the building, its guardians soon capitu-lated to the enemy, and the latter triumphantly took possession of the arsenal and all the mu-took possession of the arsenal and all the munitions of war which it contained.

Only a few shots were exchanged, and the poor resistance made by the defenders of the arsenal is shown by the fact that none of the insurgent force is reported to have been killed or seriously wounded. A laborer employed in the arsenal was struck by one of the shots fired by the attacking party, and is the only one of the contestants known to have lost his life in the assault.
One of the cannon balls fired from the ar-

the assault.

One of the cannon balls fired from the arsenal was badly directed and struck the Candelaria church, causing much damage to the building.

Panic in the City.

The news of the uprising had a very disquiet-ing effect, and created the greatest alarm in this city among the women and children and those citizens who had not taken up arms in those citizens who had not taken up arms in support of either party; and when the fighting began at the arsenal and the rattle of musketry and the boom of cannon were heard, all were seized with wild panie, and fied to places of safety to hide until the firing had ceased and the conflict was at an end.

Merchants and shopkeepers, fearful lest their places would be looted by the insurgents, or by thieving individuals who would take advantage of the confusion and excitement to pillage their stocks, made haste to close their establishments and securely bolt and bar both doors and windows, and to take such other measures for the safety of their property as occasion warranted. All their hurried preparations were unnecessary, however, for, as already described, the attack on the arsenal was of only short duration, and beyond the smashing of a portion of the church struck by a cannon ball no further damage was inflicted upon property and very little disorder prevailed among the congressionalist forces.

The feeling of alarm in the city was gradually dispelled and all the people are now rejoicing at the success which has crowned the efforts of those who took part in the revolution to put an end to Da Fonseca's dictatorship.

an established fact and the manifesto of Da Fonseca, announcing that he would bow to the will of the people, had been issued.

The state of seige which had been proclaimed was at once raised when the insurgents obtained control of the government.
It is expected that members of the congress which had been dissolved by the order of Da

The provinces have not yet been heard received in regard to the growing opposition throughout the country to Da Fonseca's supremacy, that the news of his downfall will everywhere be received with the same satisfaction as at the capital.

SELIGMAN'S MISSION. The Banker States His Views to the French

The Banker States His Views to the French Minister of Finance.

Paris, November 23.—M. Seligman, the New York banker, who was sent to Europe as a representative of the United States treasury department with the view of bringing about the holding of an international conference to secure the establishment of a bi-metallic agreement, has been in this city to secure the cooperation of the French. Minister Reid presented Mr. Seligman to M. Rouvier, minister of finance, to whom Mr. Seligman set forth the object of his mission at length. M. Rouvier gave Mr. Seligman a cordial reception. He expressed his sympathy with the proposal to bring about a common ratio between gold and silver, but stated that he was not willing to take the initiative in the matter. He expressed the hope that England and Germany might be induced to co-operate with France to bring about a conference to effect the desired end.

Riotous French Miners.

Paris, November 23.—There is now no doubt that the strike of the coal miners, in the department of Pas De Calais, is a general one. Of the forty thousand and more miners in the coal fields of that department, there are today only 100 at work. A number of meetings have been held at various places in the department, which generated into riotous gatherings, at which many bitter threats were made against the mine owners. Troops scattered the mobs without being compelled to fire upon them.

PRICE FIVE CENTS YESTERDAY'S STORM.

The White House Damaged-The Gale All Along the Coast.

Washington, November 23.—A terrific wind and rain storm amounting to almost a hurricane, passed over this city about 12:30 o'clock today, doing a great deal of damage to buildings, in the ruins of ten of which several people were buried, and completely prostrating the telegraph wires. The storm seems to have been quite general. The worst damage was done to the fine Metzerott music hall, the walls of which were well advanced to completion, of which were well advanced to completion, and were at that stage of progress when they offer the least resistance to it. The wind swept into the high walls of this building and part of the structure went into a crash, breaking into several stores on F street near Twelfth, adjoining the Metzerott music store. One of these stores was occupied by George White, ladies' tailor, and the second by Gude & Brother, florists.

Negley, assignee of the North Alabama Construction Company, has sued the Florence Northern railroad for the amount mentioned, on the ground of non-performance of contract. The survey has been completed to Linden, Tenna, a distance of seventy miles, and the road-bed graded to a point twenty-seven miles north, and ties and treatles furnished and ready for rails. The terms of the contract were that the Florence Northern railroad was to pay $50,000 per mile for the roadbed completed. No part of the consideration has been paid, and the assignee claims one-fifth of the work completed. The suit has created quite a stir and caused considerable comment.

TO BREAK JAIL.

There Seems to Be an Organized Attempt

TO GET OUT OF FULTON COUNTY JAIL

On the Part of the Prisoners-A Timely Discovery Prevents a Delivery—A Discovery This Morning.

Sheriff Morrow was at the Fulton county jail all last night.

And with open eyes and untiring industry patrolled the jail from dark until daylight. His hard work may have been for nothing. There seems to be a well organized plan on the part of the inmates of the Fulton county jail to escape from its confines. Sheriff Morrow, ever alert and vigilant, recognized this fact, and has been quietly work for three or four days to frustrate any

They said that they saw the work done, but would not tell who did it, and told Sheriff Morrow where the tools with which the work was done could be found. A search was made and the tools found. A long crooked iron rod, used in opening the cells, half of a pair of scissor, and a broken knife blade were chucked into a small hole in cell No. 23. With these tools it would take but a short time to escape from Fulton

Sheriff Morrow intends to personally superintend a supervision of the jail, and see that every instrument that may be hid about the cells is found.

He is determined that the attempts to break jail and the cutting of holes in the wall shall be stopped.

Sheriff Morrow gave orders Badger to be chaimed yesterday, Deputy Jailer Mattox started up the stairway to bring Badger down, when the others had been chained, but Badger confronted him with a brick, and swore that he would kill the first man who attempted to come up the stairs. He then told all the negroes, who were standing around to get out, or he would kill them. There was a stampede of negroes, and Badge held the stairway for a minute.

Jailer Mattox secured his pistol and cover ing Badger with it, went up the stairway. Three times Badger drew back as if to throw the brick, but did not do so. Mr. Matton collared him and carried him down stairs and chained him in the cell.

In one or two of the cells bricks were found hid in the air chambers of the walls.

This morning Sheriff Morrow and one of the guards went through the jail. Next to Pete Daniel's cell is the cell occupied by Badger. The guard held up a lamp and looked in the cell. There was a rattling of chains, and Badger's yellow face appeared at the cel

THE PIONEER CITIZENS TACKLE HISTORY.

They Order a Research on Matters of Interest in Atlanta's Origin and Growth.

About thirty of Atlanta's pioneer citizens met in regular monthly meeting last night at the Confederate Veterans' hall.

It was the first meeting held since the adoption of the constitution and by-laws.

Messrs. George Weish, B. F. Longley and J. R. Mason were elected to membership in the association, and the names of Messrs. J. R. Paris, F. P. Rice, B. S. Ivey and N. J. Hammond were presented to be balloted on at the text meeting.

next meeting.

A regular lecture committee will make arrangements with members to address the meetings on topics of interest to Atlanta—its ups

The history of Atlanta is to be collected in a more permanent form. A plan suggested by Mr. W. A. Fuller was adopted which will keep the pioneer citizens busy between meet-

It provides that certain institutions and the city such as organizations, railroads, public buildings, etc., shall be referred each to a committee which shall read and think up that them and place on permanent record committee which shall read and think up about them, and place on permanent record all thus determined. After preparation these papers will be read before the meetings.

The first paper relates to Atlanta as a railroad center, and the points for investigation are: The legislation on the subject—at what time was it done? Who in the legislature were the most conspicuous and influential friends of the present site of Atlanta as the southern terminus of the Western and Atlantic railroad? What arguments were used in behalf of the site as being a snitable junction for the Georgia Railroad and the Monroe Railroad Companies? The committee to investigate these points are Messrs. Jonathan Norcross, John Collier, N. J. Hammond, W. H. Hulsey, John C. Hendrix and C. R. Hanleiter.

than Norcross, John Collier, N. J. Hammond, W. H. Hulsey, John C. Endrix and C. R. Hanleiter.

Another committee has for consideration the union passenger depot. Its location, what lands were donated for railroad purposes, when and by whom donated, when and how were the lands so donated disposed of, what buildings now occupy such lands, etc. Messrs. George W. Adair, L. P. Grant, J. E. Williams, W. L. Calhoun, E. T. Hunnicutt, Williams, McConnell and Dr. Joe Besworth are the committee.

A third committee is to get accurate data about the present capitol building. This will include a history of the grounds, of Capitol square, the circumstances relating to the removal of the state government from Milledgeville to Atlanta, Atlanta's part in the affair, the expenses, etc. Messrs. Frank P. Rice, B. F. Abbott, John H. James, C. W. Hunnicutt, Ben F, Williford, Edward Parsons and John A. Doan will look up these points.

The postoffice and custom house building was also assigned to a committee. This topic includes such questions as the history of the square on which the building stands, what the city of Atlanta did in order to secure this building, etc. Messrs. R. F. Maddox, A. Leyden, F. T. Ryan, Green T. Dodd, James Loyd and A. S. Tally are the committee.

Another topic is the Air-Line railroad. What was Atlanta's part in the enterprise? How much money was donated by the city? On what terms? When and how paid? Messrs. J. Norcross, John Collins, S. B. Hoyt, N. B. Fowler and Thomas N. Williams will investigate these points.

The sixth committee of investigation comprises Messrs. George W. Adair, R. F. Maddox, Thomas G. Healey, John H. James and A. Leyden. This set will determine the facts about the old Georgia Western railroad, now the Georgia Pacific railroad. Atlanta's part in it? How much money donated by the city? On what terms? When and how paid?

All of these topics, it can be readily seen, are not only of transient interest to Atlantians, but they will grow more and more important as the facts concerning them are lost.

The pioneer citizens will keep accurate records of all the papers prepared by themselves, so that it will be a comparatively easy matter at any time to determine historical points.

There was quite a sensation caused in a Forsyth street boarding house yesterday.

The lady who runs the house has had living with her for a long time, as a member of the family and housekeeper, a woman with a bright little child. The landlady became very much attached to the child, and was going to have it adopted.

A few days ago she found the mother of the child associating with negroes, and reproved her for it. The woman claimed to be a negro, and said that she had felt for some time that she ought to make it known. The landlady sent for the police and reported the matter, but of course could do nothing. The lady was much excited over the matter. She says she is greatly attached to the child, and hates to give it up, but of course can't keep it now. She does not credit the woman's story. However, she thought it advisable to let both mother and child leave.

One of the largest turpentine stills in the state is to be seen here, which turns out about a carload of spirits and rosin daily. Dr. J. A. B. He intends making it a resort for the people who come south every year.

INCENDIARISM IN LAURENS.

A Diabolical Attempt to Burn Down a Cotton Warehouse.

Columbia, S. C., November 23.—[Special.] A diabolical attempt to fire the warehouse of Hudgens & [Garrison, containing several hindred bales of cotton, was made at Laurens tonight. Lint cotton saturated with !kerosene was stuffed in the keyhole of an outer door on the outside, bales of cotton were ranged against the door, and the communication of the flames would have been an easy matter. The incendiaries were detected, and R. H. Hudgens fired at them, but they escaped. An hour later fire was discovered coming from the roof of L. A. Koppel's frame stable. The flames were soon leyond control and the stable was destroyed. If the fire had not been promptly checked the disaster would have been fearful. Greatexcitement prevails, as it looks as if a systematic attempt to destroy the town had been made. Tonight the town is guarded. A negro man, named Harry Davis, will be arrested on suspicion.

Mr. Savin's original engagement of three nights has been extended to a week on account of the large advance sale, and he is to be the recipient of all kinds of social attention. It is said that, by agreement with General Lew Wallace, he will shortly add a dramatization of "Ben Hur" to his repertoirs. Grantville, Ga., November 23.—[Special.]
On yesterday while one of our young men was out hunting he came across a strange darky who desired to accompany him, and stated he knew where some wild ducks were. The young man readily agreed, not knowing the fate the negro had in store for him. As soon as they entered the swamp wherein the stated ducks were, he asked the young man to let him have the gun, saying that it was too mirey for him. Upon delivery the negro at once leveled the gun in the young man's face, telling him at the same time to turn out his pockets and deliver all he had over to him, and then fly for his life. The young man came running in and deliver all he had over to him, and then fly for his life. The young man came running in and reported the robbery. Some parties began pursuit at once, capturing the gun this morning. If the negro is caught the people are so enraged that the law will not have an opportunity of taking its

PONDER'S POSITION.

Associations Meet in New York He Will Probably Be Held for Kidnaping

ARE TRYING TO COMBINE. HE HAS FINALLY BEEN LOCATED.

The Story Comes from Rome That His Victim Was Once an Inmate of the Almshouse There.

Ponder has been located, and will probably be brought back to Atlanta today or tomor-Patrolman Wilson, who has been working up the case, and who went in search of Ponder a few days ago, yesterday received a telegram from the sheriff of Bartow county stating that Ponder had been located in that county and could be arrested at any moment. Zetta Clark, the thirteen-year-old girl Pon-ler treated so brutally, and claiming that she was his stepdaughter, is thought to be a girl who twas kidnaped from the almshouse in Rome, Ga., some months ago. Ponder's sister, who lives here, has avered all the time that the girl was not Ponder's stepdaughter, and that he had never married her mother, as he claimed to have done. It has been the opinion of the police and detectives all the time that the girl had been stolen by Ponder, and they are inclined to believe the story from Rome which asserts that she is the girl who was kid naped while an inmate of the almshouse.

The girl was permitted by the matron of the almshouse to go out berry hunting, but never returned. Her disappearance was mysterious for a long time, but investigation broa the fact that she had been stolen by a man fillmertain line that is far from satisfactory. It is statements made by the railroad officials that it is is but an experiment which may lead the chartering of a regular fleet of tramps, and outstedly added to their uneasiness. It is claimed that the railroad is going beyond legitimate sphere. Some of the brokers, is stated, canceled charters they d made when it was announced that Richmond and Danville people proposed stering the field against them. This was always complished at a loss, and it did not tree to increase their good feeling toward the alroad people. A cotton man said this morns that, taking all the recent developments either, he was inclined to believe that the minal people propose making Savannah ing the description of Ponder.

A description of the stolen girl has been obtained, and suits Ponder's little black-eyed victim to the letter. The matter will be sifted to the bottom, and will probably result in a warrant being sworn out against Ponder for Ridnaping.

Ponder's treatment of the girl so impaired her health that she lost her mind entirely, and was sent to the asylum. by order of Ordinary Calhoun, a few days ago.

The officers will go at once to Bartow county and bring Ponder back, when he will be tried for assaulting and probably for kidnaping Zetta Clark. The evidence against him in the first case is almost positive, and the web is rapidly weaving to perfection in the latter. CUT WITH A RAZOR.

Will Kendrick, a Negro, Cuts His Wife Almost to Death.

There was a serious cutting scrape at the cor ner of Terry street and Woodward avenue about 9 o'clock last night.

Will Kendrick, a negro, locked his wife up in a room and cut her severely with a razor. They had been quarreling all evening, but the neighbors expected no trouble. About 9 o'clock Kendrick cooly closed the door, locked it, and told his wife he was he was going to kill her. She begged for her life when she found that he was in earnest, but her pleading had no effect on the negro. She tried to defend herself, but with a well-aimed blow, he landed the keen blade of the razor full in her face, cutting a deep gash. He then struck at her throst, but she warded off the blow with her arm, getting her hand almost severad from her wrist. She screamed, and some of the neighbors broke open the door and defeated the negro's purpose. The woman was terribly cut all over the body, face, throat and hands, but fortunately, none of the wounds were deep enough to produce death. The police were called, but Kendrick had escaped. He told somebody before he left that he was going to Macon. Patrolman McCauly, who went to the scene of the cutting, is after him, and thinks he knows where he can be captured. The Democratic Convention-Where Should It Be Held?

It is generally conceded by those who are inclined to take a reasonable and sober view of the situation and its prospects that the democrats are not to have what is termed a walkover in 1892. They have the advantage of position, but in order to retain that advantage they will have to use the judgment and discretion that belong to the professional tactician. To make an advance, it will be necessary to fight for every inch of ground That much is already settled. Enthusiasm is an indispensable element when it is subordinated to judgment, but it is somewhat demoralizing in effect when it tends to overrate the democratic strength and underrate the strength and prospects of the repub-

The situation pow is such that the democratic party should take advantage of every circumstance to strengthen and improve its position at points where success is absolutely essential. It seems to us that the democratic convention itself, apart from the merely formal duties of nominating candidates and advertising a declaration of principles, can be employed in strengthening the democratic position and furthering the prospects of the party. In other words, we think the democrats should take advantage of the influence which the mere presence of a national convention is supposed to exert, and arrange to hold it at a point where its influence may be thoroughly utilized.

Why, for instance, should the democratic convention be held in Cincinnati? The democrats can have no hope of carrying Ohio, and such influence as the convention carries with it will be wasted. Why should it be held in Chicago? The same objections apply. We cannot hope to carry Illinois, even with the influence of the convention.

re, then, taking all the possibilities of the situation into consideration, should the democratic convention be held? There can be but one reasonable answer to this. It should be held in New York city. That city, and state will be the centers of the democratic campaign and the centers of democratic interest. It is true that New York state is naturally democratic, but it is not normally so. Frequently in the very crisis of democratic hopes it has turned to the republicans-as in 1880 and in 1888.

Upon the result in New York in 1892 will depend democratic victory or defeat. How necessary then that the democrats should strive by every means in their power to insure success in that quarter. They are sure of the south, they are sure of New Jersey, they are reasonably sure of four electora votes in Michigan, and, by combining their efforts in New York and Indiana so as to take from these states the element of doubt. they can carry the country. This view simplifies the campaign, and enables the demo crats to concentrate their efforts in two states, whereas the republicans will be compelled to fight in these two states, and also in Massachusetts and Iowa.

There is another reason why the national convention of the democratic party should be held in New York. For many years the democrats of New York, in both their organized and individual capacity, have been made the victims of the most mallgnant slanders. Those slanders have been put in circulation by the republicans and their mugwump assistants, and there can be no doubt that the iteration and reiteration of these malicious assaults on the character of individual democrats and their party organization have had some influence on the views and opinions of democrats in other parts of the country. Thus we see papers in the south and elsewhere copying into their columns, with the flavor of editorial endorsement, republican and mugwump attacks on the leading democrats of New York state, and on the leading democratic organization. Under all these circumstances we think it both desirable and necessary that the democratic national convention should be held in New York city. There the influence of that body could make itself felt to some purpose, and the democratic delegates would have the advantage of studying the situation there, and of meeting face to face the leaders who have been made the victims of republican and mugwump slanders. The results of this contact and association would be a healthy understanding which would improve and strengthen the spirit of the party and victory certain.

There may be developments not now foreseen which will render it necessary for the convention to be held in the west. case, it should be held in Indianapolis. But if there are no such developments, the convention ought by all means to be held in New York.

A Model Law and Order City.

The fact has been telegraphed all over the country that last Sunday was Nashville's first "dry" Sabbath in a number of years, The saloons had no side doors open, and the liquor traffic was totally suspended.

From time to time similar items of news concerning other cities appear in print and excite wonder and comment. The average Atlanta man is among the surprised readers, but his interest in the matter is the outgrowth of his familiarity with the conditions revailing here.

In our model law and order city, under well-regulated high license system, the liquor traffic is so restricted that "dry" Sundays are expected as a matter of course. No saloon keeper would dream of opening a side door, and the reckless fellows who try the blind-tiger business are promptly spotted and suppressed.

We do not believe that another city in the United States can equal Atlanta's record for law and order, and it is generally admitted that even the prohibition cities have more drunken men on their streets than are to be seen here.

Our conservative and just laws, and our systematic methods of enforcing them, have attracted the attention of the entire country. We are not trying any extreme or fanciful experiments. Our citizens and their municipal lawmakers are all pulling together for the good of Atlanta. This policy is so well understood and so overwhelmingly endorsed that it is an easy matter to preserve order every day in the week, as well as on the Sab-

We are so accustomed to this peaceful and harmonious state of affairs that the sensation caused by a "dry" Sunday in a sister city excites our surprise. We have solved the law and order and temperance problems so easily that the experience of other cities seems to require an explanation.

The outside world will find it profitable to study and imitate Atlanta's example.

A Tale of Two Cities.

When "The Clemenceau Case" was presented in Atlanta the beautiful "Iza" allowed to exhibit herself in the studio scene clad in flesh-colored tights that made her resemble a perfectly nude figure. The play was presented here two or three times. and, while there was some talk about it, there was nothing like a sensation.

But Nashville was not prepared for such an exhibition. The play drew crowded houses in that city two nights, but the matinee was suppressed by the authorities. The manager was notified that he was violating the city code when he allowed a woman to "pose before the audience in flesh-colored tights so as to completely expose her entire

So the matinee did not come off, but at night "The Clemenceau Case" was repeated, the charming "Iza" being draped in a

The incident naturally suggests a comparison between Atlanta and Nashville in the matter of morality. And yet there is nothing in it. Public sentiment varies and fluctuates. There are times when Atlanta flies into a spasm of virtuous indignation over a picture or a play, while liashville gazes upon them with placid sacisfaction. A month later the situation me be reversed with Atlanta in the role of the Puritan, and Nashville in a liberal and artistic mood.

Cities have their whims and fancies ju as individuals have. They are rigidly moral one season and very indifferent the next. Before the winter is over it is quite likely that Nashville will enjoy a show that will not be tolerated in Atlanta. Public morality is a changeable thing. It cannot be controlled by any fixed rules.

One Issue or All?

of democratic policy than the period which immediately precedes the meeting of the national convention. When the convention meets it will settle the matter, so far as the lemocrats are concerned, for they will all acquiesce in the line of policy laid down by their representative body. It is important therefore, that democrats, through the medium of friendly discussion, should enable the representatives of the party in convention to settle on that policy which promise the largest and most fruitful results.

There is now before the party a proposi tion, which is urged with commendable zeal that the next democratic campaign should be fought on the single issue of tariff re form; that all other issues, no matter how pressing they may be, should be postponed for the purpose of pushing the issue of tariff reform. We believe that the zeal which urges this policy is a mistaken zeal, and that the policy on which it insists would cripple the party rather than strengthen it. From the enthusiasm which would confine the party to the single issue of tariff reform we desire to appeal to the common sense of the democratic people, who alone can fix the policy of the party.

First and foremost, it is a duty the demo cratic party owes to the people of the country to make its campaign on issues which will enable it to accomplish something in the event that its candidates are elected Should the sole issue of the party be tariff reform, what can the party hope to accom-plish during the four years for which its candidates are elected, provided they are elected? It can accomplish nothing. moment it attempts to legislate in the direction of tariff reform, it runs up against the dead wall of the senate, and there it must stop for four years. Meanwhile, the party having made the campaign on the one issue of tariff reform, it will feel that it is not authorized to move for the remonetization of silver or for finan cial reform; so that for four long years everything calculated to benefit the people will be tied up in a bag and tucked away in the closet. The people will be unable to get relief of any kind. Will this help or burt the democratic party? The matter is not one of senument, but of business. With its tariff reform tied up and other vital issues postponed or ignored, what sort of figure will the democratic party cut? Suppose, on the other hand, the party proadens its platform and popularizes its policy by supplementing the tariff reform issue with financial reform and the free coinage of silver; suppose that on this broader platform it carries the day, what is to prevent it from remonetizing silver and arrying out a plan of financial reform satisfactory to the people? The only time the democrats have ever been able to divide the republican senate was on the free coinage issue, and it should never be forgotten that but for this issue the force bill would be a law today.

There is another fact which should be borne in mind. If the democrats succeed in 1892 they must secure more votes than they received at that time. Can they secure these additional votes on the one issue of tariff reform? It was thought that the elections of November, a year ago, were an en dorsement of the tariff reform idea, but the elections a few weeks ago show that this conclusion is not to be drawn without some reservation. We shall have to subtract the protest against the force bill and against the tyranny of Speaker Reed. At the elections n Ohio and Massachusetts, a few weeks ago, there was no decided protest against protect tion, so far as we have been able to gather. On the other hand, there was a substantia protest in Iowa, where the democrats made free coinage one of the prominent issues against the financial legislation of the repub licans: and this fact stands out, beyond all question, as one of the most important polit ical results of the year.

We present these views without prejudice against the opinions of others. We have touched on a question of policy which ought to be fully and fairly discussed. We believe that if the democrats ignore the free coinage issue and the issue of financial reform, and go into the contest on the tariff alone, they will be overtaken with disaster. The way to avert the probability of disaster is for democrats to discuss the matter now while there is yet opportunity.

Virginia's State Debt.

Very few of our readers have been able to follow the long and complicated negotiations leading to the settlement of Virginia's state debt.

The history of the debt is briefly summarized by The Philadelphia Press, and if the facts given are correctly stated it is safe to say that Virginia is about to make an amicable arrangement with her creditors.

The basis of the recent agreement between the state commission and the bondholders is the issue of $19,000,000 of new bonds to run 100 years with from 2 to 3 per cent interest.

The Virginia debt was created before the war. The bonds were regularly issued, and in 1870 the principal and unpaid interest amounted to about $45,000,000. At least three attempts have been made to settle it. The Press says:

In 1871 practically one-third of the debt was wiped out by an issue of new bonds for two-thirds of the debt and non-interest-bearing cer-tificates for the other third. Eight years later another arrangement was made by which the interest was cut down and 50 per cent of the unpaid interest was repudiated. Then in 1882 the Riddle-berger bill was passed readjusting the larger part of the debt on the basis of 53 per cent of its par value and the rest on a basis of 60 and 80 per cent of its par value. On this basis the debt would have been reduced to $21,035,377.15, but only $5,863,357.71 were funded under this law, leaving about $28,000,000 outstanding. It is the latter sum which is now to be scaled down to $19,000,000 One obstacle in the way of a settlement has been the refusal of West Virginia to assume its just share of the debt. One of the terms on which that state was admitted into the union in 1862 was that the new commonwealth should assume its equitable share of the public debt of old Virginia. equitable share of the public debt of old virginia. This has generally been estimated at one-third, but West Virginia has taken no steps to meet its bligations in this respect.

It is to be hoped that the Virginia legislature will ratify the proposed settlement. Virginia will be greatly benefited, and American, and especially southern, securities will be on a better footing in Europe. No state debt has ever been so vexatious and far-reaching in its injurious results, and the entire country will be gratified to see it removed from the arena of discussion.

Tex., on the 20th instant, introduced some new features to vary the monotony of the ordinary execution. Mr. Frizzell slept soundly before the night of his taking off—all bloody murderers do—and he also relished his breakfast as is customary.
But in beguiling his last hours in holding a 'kangaroo court,' Mr. Frizzell made an innovation on the old-fashioned programme. And his remark on his way to the scaffold, that he felt like a little boy going to Sunday school, had the merit of originality. In the matter of smoking a cigar as he mounted the scaffold, Mr. Frizzell had a precedent in the case of a man who was hung some years ago at Fort Smith, but probably the Texas man had never heard of this case, and the idea may be counted as his own. In place of some hymn calculated to depress the feelings of the spectators, Mr. Frizzell called for 'There's Never a Day so Sunny,' and so the exercises were closed, to the satisfaction of the 15,000 persons present. All the same, the propriety of private executions in Texas is suggested. NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Among the interviews about the circular of the Continental collection agency, printed in Sunday's Constitution, was one with Mr. Alex C. King, which was not correctly reported.

Mr. King was seen and his statement of the matter was: That he owed this concern nothing. That some eight or nine years ago he had represented it, being induced to do so by certain representations which were untrue, and promises made which they wholly failed to carry out. That discovering this he declined to further represent the concern and so notifled them, upon which he received a letter threatening this system of blackmail. That he urged them, if they thought they had any claim whatever, to bring suit upon it and let the courts settle it. That for seven years they have declined to do this. That so far from owing them, they are indebted to him for the sum he paid them under the misrepresentation and unkept promises which they made.

Every day somebody who knows Dr. Nelson, cese of Georgia, has an enthusiastic say of him. A Virginian, who was a class nate of his, and who now lives in Augusta said yesterday: "Dr. Nelson will prove just the right man for the diocese of Georgia. I don't think him a notably eloquent preacher, but that isn't necessary to a successful bishop. He possesses, though, strong executive ability, a great deal of energy and experience in missio work that will prove most valuable in a diocese like Georgia. He is a splendid fellow, personally, and, I am sure, will be a power for great good in Georgia."

ETCHED AND SKETCHED.

In just about three weeks the executive con mittee of the national prohibition party will meet in Chicago to select a place for holding nal convention. the next natio "I believe Atlanta can secure that convention, and it will bring 5,000 strangers here we get it," said Mr. J. B. Jaques, yesterday.

Mr. Jaques was a resident of Indianapolis in 1888, when the prohibition party held its national convention there. It was worth many thousand dollars to the city. The party has never held a national convention in the south, and would be inclined to come here.

The prohibition party sconvention is made up of double the representation in the house and senate, like the conventions of the democratic and republican parties. But in addition to the delegates there is always a large attendance of men interested in the temperance cause. The prohibitionists include many men of great wealth, and they spend their money liberally in advancing their party's interests. It is claimed that the national organization is grow ing steadily, and a great gain is expected in the vote next year. At the last convention every state was represented except Louisiana and Navada.

Cincinnati was anxious to get that conven tion, and sent an influential committee to call the convention for Cincinnati. One of the members of the Cincinnati comm was a wealthy brewer. He did not expect to sell any more beer through the convention being held in his city, but he wanted Cincin nati to get the benefit of the advertisement. The meeting was to be held somewhere and he was anxious to have it go to Cincinna Porkopolis raised by subscription a fund of $50,000, to be expended in catching large conventions. Six hundred dollars would pay all the expenses attendant upon the convention' meeting here.

Messrs, Sam Small and A. A. Murphey were the last appointees on the executive mittee from Georgia. Since then Mr. Small has developed third party tendencies. Georgia's prohibitionists have not taken much inerest in the national party. They have been prohibitionists in local issues and mostly demo crats in national campaigns. In the past the can certainly take part in the national tickets have not drawn much support from this state.

This fight in Atlanta is not expected to strengthen the national party much, either. When the election is over the prohibitionists will go back into the old parties.

It is a proud boast of the national prohibi-tionists that they stick better than any new parties of the past. Defeat does not dishearten them, but they come up every four years with a national ticket. Who will be nominated at the next convention, which will be held about May, is problematical. No one eems to be seeking the honor. The accept ance of the nominations for presi resident is considered a matter of duty.

If Atlanta wants the convention next year an effort will have to be made for it right away.

There is no nuisance who is more disgusting than the one who makes himself obnoxiously conspicuous in the hotel dining room by lo talking and general bad form. Think of This and-Register-Your Vote Is Needed for Atlanta's Good. From Judge John L. Hopkins's Letter.

Needed for Atlanta's document of the city, and suggested to the city and therefore desire its success. That I was chairman of the committee of one hundred does not make me in any sense a representative of it. It has no representative; it is the people. I am for peace, harmony and resolute work for Atlanta. I have never known in Atlanta greater need of united effort, on the part of her people, than now. Her marvelous growth has been such as to require miles upon miles of paved streets, sidewalks and severs, and a new supply of water is imperatively demanded. These public works have to be carried on and accomplished. They have become necessities. The burthen imposed by them on the people will be great. All things point to a trial period in our history. We are putting off the old, and putting on the new. It comes upon us at an unpropitious time. We are but just emerging from a time of great general depression. Atlanta has felt it sorely. Not like most other cities, perhaps, but still she has suffered greatly. So It is that, when least able to carry it, the city is subjected to an unusual burthen. There is but one way to carry it—harmony and united effort are indispensable."

At the last meeting of the league Mr. D. M. Vining was appointed to take a census of the active railroad men in the city. He reported the work last night. He had the names of 2,382 railroad men. There were many he had not succeeded in getting. He was instructed to complete his work and report at the next meeting of the league.

first act in the disbanding.

Last night the attack upon him was stamped as false and entirely unwarranted and the officer characterized as faithful, painstaking and conscientious.

The following resolutions were passed by the artillery with unanimity. Captain Forbes's nany friends will be delighted to hear of the conpany's action.

ATLANTA, Ga., November 9.—We, the undersigned members of the Atlanta Artillery, express our disapproval of the article in The Evening Journal, and published October 22d, and wish publicly to condemn the same, and say the article was unwarranted and without excuse, as it purported to express the sentiments of the battery. It was without authority from the battery. Two members took it upon themselves to publish it, and we further say that the Atlanta Artillery has always heretofore settled any and all differences among themselves without going to the public through the columns of a newspaper.

We condemn the act as one calculated to create discord in our heretofore harmonious ranks.

The attack upon Captain George B. Forbes, in said article, is, as we conceive it, unwarranted, and reflects upon a faithful, painstaking and conscientious officer, one who has devoted his time, talents and money to the builoung up of the battery and putting it in the frent ranks of the Georgia volunteers. This was signed by all the members of the company.

I think the vote stood 98 for Willitts and 18 for Utiey. That vote, in my judgment, shows the practical unanimity of the order upon all questions of going into the people's lparty.

INSIDE. VIEW

Of the Proceedings of the Alliance Supreme Council.

MR. F. D. WIMBERLY INTERVIEWED

Who Went to Indianapolis to Help the People's Party-Branch's Resolution The Test Vote on Willitts,

Here is an inside view of the alliance convention at Indianapolis. Mr. F. D. Wimberly of Pulaski county, the alliance lecturer for his congressional district, went to the Indianapolis envention as a delegate and was a witness of the proceedings. He saw what was said or done on the third party question and other im-portant matters. He saw what elements went from Georgia to precipitate a third party movement, and in the interview which follows he places the different men where they belong. Mr. Wimberly was asked what was done at the alliance convention, and replied as fol-

"Some things were done which, perhaps, I should not reveal. Much was done that the world is welcome to know. While we had some excitement, it was a very harmonious session, and we were all satisfied at its close that we were more united than ever."

Solid on the Subtreasury. "There was a unanimous vote sustaining the Ocala demands, and whenever the subtreasury was mentioned there was unbounded enthu iasm for standing by it."

The People's Party. "There were in session in the city at the same time a number of union labor organizations and also a convention of the people's party men. Georgia was represented in the people's party movement by Mr. Watson (Tom) and four or five others, including ex-Senator Ellington, Mr. Gilmore, alliance lecturer for the first congressional district.
Mr. Branch was allied with them, though he was a delegate to the alliance council."

Heavy Outside Pressure. "The outside pressure upon the supreme council on political questions was very great. A resolution was offered in the supreme council by Mr. Branch to carry the alliance organization at once into the people's party. This resolution was killed by a handsome majority, in which may be counted the Kansas delega tion, although Jerry Simpson was there to assist the people's party, and did do so. Mr. Branch also offered a resolution to commit the organization to government of nership of railroads, which resolution, I think, was with-

Livingston's Position

"Against the resolutions Livingston planted himself squarely, and all the delegates from Georgia, except Branch, stood squarely by him. From the beginning, Livingston gradually overcame the prejudice excited against him by the assaults in Georgia, and I fell sure that he comes from the council a stronger man over the whole country than he was be fore he went there. It is a willful misstatement that Livingston ever offered for the presidency of the alliance convention. He nd the Georgia delegates, who agreed with him, thought from the first that it would be wiser to keep Colonel Polk in his seat."

The Test Vote. "We had in the convention a test vote of these resolutions. Willitts, the national lecturer, in submitting his report, presented in strong, unmistakable language all these questions and took the same position occupied by Livingston and his confeerees. The third party men put up against Willitts for national lec-turer a brother from Kansas by the name of Utley, who was a third party man. He was advertised by a subtreasury speech of rare power, which he had made in Tomlinson's hall. In this speech he displayed dramatic talent in a high degree. He was just the man to capti-vate an intelligent audience. When we came to the election of a lecturer Willitts had nothing to stand for except standing squarely on the Ocala demands and the faithful dis-charge of his duty. He beat Utley very badly, with all his gifts as an orator, and with all his shrewdness of mind. and I think the vote stood 98 for Willitts and 18 for Utiey. That vote, in my will guarantee to the people an honest inten tion to deliver them from the oppression which new curses them. Failing to do this, our constitutional lawyers may look for the people to undertake their own cause. That is my honest judgment.'

The Pension Plank.

"An important matter which perhaps I ought to mention is that a resolution was introduced by Dr. Stone, of Georgia, to give service pension to every needy and disabled honorably discharged union soldier, the same to be paid by the government in lawful paper money, and not to be redeemed by taxation.

This resolution was sustained by southerners and only met with opposition from north delegates. It was finally passed by a unanimous rising vote. This will take the question of pensions out of politics if regard is paid to the wishes of the alliance." Macune and Weaver.

"As a matter of general interest, you may state that Dr. Macune delivered a very broad, manswerable argument upon the subtreasury General Weaver, in a very impressive and manly speech, utterly refuted Secretary Foster's statement as to the amount of mo circulation. In doing this he used official statements made by Sherman, Comptroller Knox and other United States treasury offi-

"A most encouraging feature, not only of the council meetings, but in social intercourse, was the obliteration of sectional prejudice and animosity, not only with our order, but with all the union labor organizations. I believe the war is about forgotten, and the dead past left to bury its dead. Sooner or later, in my judgment, at no distant day, we will have a country therewelly united in country there were the country the country there were the country the country the country there were the country the cou ountry thoroughly united in every patriotic endeavor to bless every citizen."

The Anti-Subtreasury Delegation. 'What of the anti-subtreasusy men?"

"The anti-subtreasuryites sent a delegation composed of McAllister, Gates and Dr. Yeamans. This Dr. Yeamans I take to be a man of much more than ordinary ability. Livingston was appointed chairman of the committee to meet these gentlemen and arrange with them to have a debate upon the subtreasury between Dr. Yeamans and some man chosen by the council. They agreed to it, and also agreed to give the com-mittee a full text of the address or statement which they had prepared, so that the supreme council might take it into consideration. Both these promises they broke and ignominiously left the scene of action. Had they accepted the challenge, Livingston would have been chosen as the defender of the subtreasury. All those gentlemen were with one accord repudiated by the supreme council.'

They Were Not Strapped. "Among the slanders against the suprem council was the declaration that we had no money, and our poor delegates were strapped in Indianapolis. To refute this, I state the fact that every man got his full pay and we left in the treasury between one and two thouarious Projects for Raising Funds-The Opera Festival-The Grand Fair, Other Schemes Described.

It will take $25,000 to complete the Grady hospital, and about five thousand dollars to furnish it.

This is Mr. Joe Hirsch's estimate "This sounds like a big amount of money to raise," said Mr. Hirsch last evening, "but I am not despondent. I do not despair of securing it in the course of the next twelve itshould not be just as successful right here in Atlanta, and I feel confident it will be."

"The grand fair you planned some time ago—what of that?"

"Some of the ladies from whom I expected assistance have been rather tardy. They have not been so active as I should like. They will soon be ready to begin active preparations. The scheme is a most attractive one. The fair will run either two or three weeks. It will be held in the Grady hospital building. A unique exhibition it will be. Nothing precisely like it has ever been given in Atlanta before. We propose asking the co-operation of the ladies of every denomination. The fair will be a non-sectarian enterprise. Baptists, Cathelics, Methodists, Presbyterians, Unitarians, and all other churches will be asked to aid us. We will place the details in the hands of the ladies who have made similar enterprises so successful. It is not unreasonable to expect that the fair will net us at least $5,000. We will get the assistance of people in the large cities of the north and east. I will request merchants here to solicit articles of value and cash. In this way a good deal may be secured. We have not yet decided when the fair shall be held. I wish you would stir up the ladies, those who some time ago promised to lead in the matter. They should come together at an early day and formulate plans."

"Any other prospective entertainments?"

"Oh, yes," answered Mr. Hirsch, "but I'll tell you about them in due time." "My last report to the city council," Mr. Hirsch continued, "stated that it would require $25,000 more for the completion of the building. Of course this does not include the cost of furnishing it. That will take in the neighborhood of $5,000."

"How do you propose raising this money, Mr. Hirsch?"

"In sundry ways. The dime banks have brought in about three hundred dollars. About four hundred and 50 tickets for the plane which is to be rafiled, have been purchased These tickets cost fifty cents each. There is no reason why we should not sell 1,500 more tickets. The piano is at the music store of Mr. F. L. Freyer, on Peachtree street. A goo many tickets for the buggy have been taken and many more will be bought. This hand some vehicle is on exhibition at Hickey's near The Constitution office. The plane and the buggy will be raffled, and friends of the hospital will do well to buy some tickets."
"What about the various entertainments which are to be given for the benefit of the hospital?" "We have a good string of them. The first will take place in the Hirls' Righ school next Friday night by the members of the Mallon Society. This will be a unique performan which will draw a big crowd. It will net a good sum."

"What about the opera club?" "I am enthusiastic about that. We will make the most brilliant success of that grand musical enterprise. The events will be brilliant, for the society ladies of Atlanta and the musical folk will combine their forces to make performances successful. Interesting Gossip About Events That Have Taken Place, and Some That Are to Take Place.

Although the season has been very gay thus far, none of the large entertainments have been marked by any particularly unique features, and Miss Jackson's cravat and bonnet party and Miss Annie Inman's progressive spinster party are, I believe the only smaller gatherings out of the usual. A bal masque or bal poudre are about the only things one can have in the way of large gatherings which give savor of romance and originality. There has been no masque ball this season and the bal poudre, in the matter of costume, was only half a one, for one-third of the giris didn't powder their hair and very few of them wore the quaint gowns that go with snowy puffs and black patches. The men amended the incongruity of powdered heads and dress suits by leaving off the powder.

Why doesn't the club get up something in the way of a fancy dress ball for its first entertainment?

Then the driving club, with its pretty, new restaurant, is a picturesque place for small affairs. It isn't any farther out than a man often has to drive for his best girl, and it offers the picest inducement to single men to honor a select tempany with a cory oyster roast or card party. Then it's a nice place for people who board to entertain their friends and I don't know any habitation in which one could arange for a joilier Christmas party.

I've been hearing recently of some decidedly odd and pretty affairs given in other cities. Among them was a Dutch luncheon to which two leading belies sommoned some twelve girl friends. The two pretty hostesses received their guests in the quaint, becoming costumes of Dutch peasant girls; even wearing on their dainty feet little wooden sabots, above which one caught a glimpse of the him warn hear. The drawing rooms were wooden sabove, above which one caught a gimpe of the blue yarn hose. The drawing rooms were adorned entirely in rare and brilliant tulips—that floral gem first discovered by a Flemming. There were fairy lamps and candelabra with tulip shades, while the draperies to windows and man-

In the dining rooms the walls were garlanded with grape vines and dark, dewy clusters of fruit.

In the center of the table was a silver cask filled with the same fragrant fruit and its humanly veined leaves.

The menu, composed entirely of Dutch dishes, was served in Dresden China and Bohemian glass, and the hostesses themselves waited on their guests like the pretty peasants they represented.

The favors were Bohemian glass beer mugs and clusters of tulips tied with long green ribbons.

Another unique entertainment was given to Miss Adelene Adair while visiting out west. Her uncle, whom she visited, was a prominent professor in a boys' college, and Miss Adair, to while away the time, entered his class in natural history. She became very much interested in the anatomy of insects, and her friends concluded to honor her by a grasshopper tea. The table was all in green, being adorned with green ribbons, whose big bows at the side were caught by enameled grasshoppers. The center piece was a big bisque vase in the shape of a grasshopper, filled with ferns and grasses. The favors were enameled grasshoppers with diamond eyes. oppers with diamond eyes.

Dotted lines, or isothermal, pass through points of equal temperature. Unbroken lines, or isobars, pass through points of equal air pressure. The arrows fly with the wind. The figures at the end of the isotherms show the temperature all along that line. The isobars, or lines of equal pressure, run round a "high" cold wave or a "low" rain area, just as hillsided ditches run round a knoll. The isobars rise one above the other with the grade of the atmospheric hill, or descend with the grade of the atmospheric valley. When you see the figures 30.01 at the end of a line it means that at all places where the lifter runs the air is high enough to balance in weight 30.01 inches of mercury. The same for 30.2, 30.3, etc. The cold comes with the high atmosphere, and rain usually with a "low."

The pressure is unusually low over the lower lake region, with a barometer of 30.34 inches at Detroit. Abundant rains have fallen in that section, the rainfall at Detroit for the twelve hours ending at 8 p. m. last evening being 1.12 inches. Lighter rains have occurred along the Atlantic coast, while the weather in the west remains generally clear. There has been a slight rise in pressure at Atlanta during the past twenty-four hours, the barometer at 8 o'clock last evening registering 29.95 inches. A fall of nearly 20 degrees in temperature occurred between 8 o'clock Sunday evening and the same hour last evening. The weather will remain fair during today and tomorrow, with colder westerly winds.

SUPREME COURT DECISIONS. Some Important Atlanta Cases Disposed Of. The supreme court handed down several important decisions yesterday, most of them of special interest to lawyers and litigants in of special interest to lawyers and hagainst Atlanta.

A case involving points of unusual interest was settled by one of these decisions. This is the case of Palmer, Stuart & Co. against Joseph M. Smith. It originated in the superior court of Fulton county and was brought to recover a large tract of land situated in West End. In the trial before Judge Marshall J. Clarke last spring a verdict was rendered in favor of the defendant, the court holding that the deed made to Palmer, Stuart & Co. by a married woman to pay a debt of her husband's, was absolutely void, and that although the defendant did not claim title through this married woman, but through an entirely different source, he could, never-title through this married woman, but through an entirely different source, he could, nevertheless, attack it, and the court was bound to declare it void, passing no title whatever.

Mr. Fulton Colville, counsel for the plaintiff, differed with the court and carried the case to the tribunal of the state. The supreme bench sustained his view of the law, and the decision of the lower court was reversed. This achievement of Mr. Colville has been complimented by the bar, and it is the more notable since the lawyers opposed to him were Judge Hopkins & Son.

awyers of Ivy vs. the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railway Company, which was heard by Judge Howard Van Epps, in the city court of Atlanta, and non-suited, the judgment is affirmed.

In the case of Hathcock vs. the state, the court reverses the decision of the lower court. Hathcock was convicted of cheating and swindling, and Judge Van Epps sentemed him to pay a fine of $1,000 or to be imprisoned for twelve months.

The appeal was sustained and the decision of the lower court reversed in the case of Butler the lower court reversed in the case of Butler vs. the Richmond and Danylle.

The court sustains the decision of Judge Marshall J. Clarke in the cast of Rogers, an attorney, vs. Moore, a client. Judge Clarke decided certain questions of law favoring the position taken by the lawyer.

JUDGE GOBER RIGHT.

This Is What the Supreme Court Decides

IN THE RYAN CONTEMPT CASE.

How Mr. Ryan Takes the Decision-Will He Go Back to Jail?—The Case to Be Heard Next Saturday.

The supreme court sustains. Judge Gober's decision in the Ryan contempt of court case.

and Mr. Ryan will have to pay over to Receiver Kingsbery $121,000-

Or go back to jail. Mr. Ryan says he cannot pay the money.

When the court met yesterday morning several decisions of special interest to people in Atlanta were announced, but the most interesting and important of these is that affirming the correctness of the judgment of Judge Gober in committing Mr. Stephen A. Ryan to jail for contempt

The contempt consisted, as the readers of THE CONSTITUTION well know, in Mr. Ryan's refusal to comply with an order of the court; that he failed to pay to Receiver Kingsbery $121,000 which it was held he had in his possession at the time the receiver was appointed by the court. It will be recalled that Mr. Ryan, when required to pay this money to Receiver Kingsbery, said:

"I cannot pay the money, for I have it not. It is impossible for me to comply with the court's mandate."

This was his defense. The proceedings before Judge Gober were protracted and lively.

Judge John L. Hopkins & Son, Mr. Walter R. Brown and Colonel Albert Cox, and other able lawyers, represented Mr. Ryan.

Judge Gober insisted that Mr. Ryan should at once pay $121,000 to the receiver, and stated that, unless he obeyed that order, he would be in contempt, and would be sent to jail and kept there till the money was paid.

Mr. Ryan went before Judge Gober and swore that he did not have the money, and, therefore, could not pay it.

This did not satisfy Judge Gober, and he signed an order committing Mr. Ryan to Fulton county jail, where he should be incarcerated until he purged himself of the contempt.

Mr. Ryan was placed in prison and kept there nearly a week.

All the while he persisted in his statement that he could not pay the money, even if he were to be kept in prison for life.

His attorneys made several ineffectual at tempts to get him out. Finally the court decided that, pending the appeal of the case to the supreme court, the defendant should be on a bond covering the amount involved in the order, viz: $121,000.

This bond was given, and Mr. Ryan was liberated. Then followed the civil proceedings before Judge Marshall J. Clarke, which culminated n the sale of the stock of goods to the H. B. Claffin company, of New York. What Mr. Ryan Says. When apprised of the supreme court's decision Mr. Ryan did not seem much perturbed. "What are you going to do about it?" was asked Mr. Ryan. "Nothing," was the sententious reply.

"I can do nothing," Mr. Ryan continued. "What can I do?"

"Will you go back to prison rather than pay "It is not a matter of choice, but of my inability to respond to the court's requirement. It would be as easy for me to pay $1,000,000 as to pay this sum. I simply can't pay either. When the order was first made I went into court and swore I was unable to comply with it, for the reason I did not have the money. If I did not have it then I certainly cannot produce it now. All the proceedings in this contempt case were based on the assumption that I had this money and was willfully withholding it from the receiver. It is nothing but a plain case of

"Then you will not pay the money or get your family and friends to help you raise it?"

"Most decidedly not. I would go to jail and stay there the remainder of my life before I would allow my family to pay this money

"What legal steps do you contemplate?" "I cannot say, for I have not yet consulted with my attorneys. We will carry the matter to the supreme court of the United States, and just as certain as I live, we will ultimately This involves a principle of liberty which is dear to all fair-minded people, and I am sure the great mass of people will not approve of this arbitrary and tyrannical procedure. I have been in business scarcely more than a month, and while I am doing wonderfully well-better than ever beforeyet I am only a salaried employe of the Ryan Company. If left alone I could in time retrieve my fortunes, but how am I to do anything if I am locked in jail?"

The Supreme Court's Decision,

Payan v. Kingsbery, receiver, et. al Practice. Su-persedeas. Injunction and receiver. Brief of evidence. Debtor and creditor. Insolvent evidence. Debtor and creditor. Insolvent traders. Contempt. Imprisonment. Before Judge Gober. Fulton superior court.

1. Where the judgement appointing a receiver and granting an injunction is brought to the supreme court by a fast bill of exceptions, under the act of 1880. (Code $3211 et seq.), no supersedeas results from filing the bill of exceptions and making an affidavit of inability from poverty to pay costs and give security, the statute declaring that "no such writ of error, or other proceeding for the obtainment of the same, shall have the effect to establish or deny any injunction independently of the order of such judge," and providing, that the judge shall "make such order and require such bond as may be necessary to preserve and protect the rights of the parties until the judgment of the supreme court can be had." There being no order of superseedeas, the pendency of the writ offerror in the supreme court can be had." There being no order of supersedeas, the pendency of the writ of error in the supreme court is no obstacle to proceeding below with interlocutory matters in all respects as if no writ of error had been sued out.

2. There being provisions in the act of 1889 for bringing to this court a brief of the evidence, but no provision for bringing up evidence not briefed, the court will not, over objection of counsel for the defendant in error, review the evidence where it appears on the face of the bill of exceptions that no bona fide attempt has been made to comply with the statute by making out a proper brief of the evidence, but a large part of the same has been brought here in full without eliminating the formal, immaterial and irrelevant parts of documents and affidavits. It results from this that the finding of the judge as to the amount of money in the hands of the defendant is to be taken as correct for the purposes of this writ of error.

3. In a creditor's suit under the insolvent traders act, the judge of the superior court, after the appointment of a receiver, has court to order after the court of a receiver, has court to order his assets, including money; and upon failure to comply with the order, after demand duly made, the defendant is subject to be attached for contempt for disobedience in not delivering up a specific sum of money found and adjudged to have been in his hands or under his control at the time demand was made upon him by the receiver. Imprisonment by virtue of such attachment is not imprisonment for debt, but for coutempt of a lawful judicial order.

4. No error of practice was committed in the proceeding for contempt.

4. No error of practice was commission proceeding for contempt.

The Effect of the Decision.

The remitter will not reach the superior court until next Saturday morning, when Messrs. Calhoun, King & Spalding, and their associates, will go before the court and make the usual motion that the decision of the supreme court be made the decision of the uperior court.

This will reopen legal hostilities, and a very pretty contest is sure to follow. The attorneys for Mr. Ryan are inordinately reticent. They decline to disclose what tactics they will follow. Indeed, they would not be interviewed when a reporter of THE CONSTI-TUTION approached them for information as to what they proposed doing.

If the motion of the attorneys against Mr.
Ryan is granted by the court, the case will stand precisely as it was the day he was sent

The original demand of the court-"Pay the receiver $121,000 or go to jail until the money is paid"--will be enforced.

If Ryan is in court-and he says he will be there-he will be given the alternative of paying the money or going back to jail. If he is not in court and cannot be found, then his bondsmen will be required forthwith to pay the money to the receiver. This is the direction the proceedings will take next Saturday.

A QUESTION OF LAW

Settled by the Supreme Court of the State.

THE MARTIN CASE IS REVIEWED

An Important Decision About Law and Business-What Rights Creditors May Enforce.

The case of Martin against Burgwyn, which was taken from Judge Richard H. Clark's court up to the supreme court, was decided yesterday morning, and the remitter will go the lower tribunal next Saturday.

J. W. Martin conducted the New York cigar tore, on Peachtree street, until a few month ago, when he failed, and his creditors petiioned Judge Clark to place the business in a receiver's hands. In the petition it was aleged that Martin was guilty of fraud in that he had bought goods, sold them and pocketed the proceeds, thereby defrauding his creditors. Judge Clark granted the petition and appointed a receiver to take control of the bus ness and the assets.

An order was signed directing Martin to turn over to the receiver all money and other assets in his possession.

Nearly the entire stock had been converted into cash, and Martin's attorneys held that no receiver could be appointed for money. This point was overruled and the defendant was ordered to pay the seciver all the cash assets in his hands.

ordered to pay the seceiver all the cash assets in his hands.

Martin rejoined that he did not have the money which it was assumed he had; that he had paid it to his sister to satisfy a claim she held against the store, and that, therefore, he could not comply with Judge Clark's order.

Judge Clark passed an order requiring Martin to pay this money forthwith over to the receiver. The mandate was disregarded, and contempt-of-court proceedings, very much like those in the Ryan case, were begun.

Messrs. Mayson & Hill and Hopkins & Son represented the plaintiff in error. They conducted the case with signal ability, the former actively managing the case in the supreme court. They have been complimented upon their victory.

The other side was represented by Messrs. Glenn & Maddox, Weil & Goodwin, Benjamin Phillips, L. K. Knight, C. L. Brooks and David Eichberg.

David Eichberg. The Court's Decision.

The Court's Decision.

Yesterday the subjoined decision was filed:
Martin v. Burgwyn et. al. Injunction and receiver.
Verification. Practice. Debtor and creditor.
Fraud. Contempt. Evidence. Before Judge
Richard H. Clark. Fulton superior court.
1. Although the act of 1887 requires a petition for injunction and receiver to be verified, yet, where the verification is imperfect, the deficiency may be supplied by affidavits at the hearing in case the presiding judge shall think proper, in the exercise of his discretion, to proceed on the defective verification. It is best, however, to require proper verification before any action is taken on the petition.

2. A petition by the venders of goods against an insolvent purchaser, alieging fraud in the purchase and repudiating the contract of sale on that account, has equity on which to proceed to reclaim the goods or their proceeds in the hands of such purchaser. This equity holds equally whether the term of credit has expired or not. In such case, a receiver may be appointed to take charge of money and books of account.

3. An order appointing a receiver is sufficiently specific in its description as to notes and books of account which specifies them thus: "The books, notes and accounts of all kinds of the said defendant in the business of selling cigars, snuff, tobacco and other goods."

4. Where, in his sworn answer to a rule for contempt in not surrendering up to a receiver his 2. A petition by the venders of goods against an

and other goods."

4. Where, in his sworn answer to a rule for contempt in not surrendering up to a receiver his money, books, notes and accounts, the detendant alleges that he cannot make the surrender because, before the filing of the petition, he paid the money and transferred the other assets to his sister in discharge of a cona fide indebtedness to her, that she now has possession of the money, books, notes and accounts, and they are not now in his power, possession or control, and where this answer is supported by the affidavit of the sister whose credibility as a witness is unimpeached, she admitting on cant that she has the assets, and it further appearing that she is solvent and able to respond to the plaintiffs or the receiver for the same and that she is a resident of the county where the sult is pending, the answer thus supported is sufficient to relieve the defendant from the imputation of willful contempt, and the rule against him should be discharged; more especially as the plaintiffs, under the facts, are not dependent upon this harsh proceeding to realize the assets in question, but may reach the same if the testimony above recited be false, either by making the sister a party defendant in the cause, or be a regular action against her at the suit of the receiver.

5. Irregularities in proceedings for contempt are immaterial where the resuit is a sufficient purging of the contempt and a consequent discharge of the rule.

Judgment affirmed as to the injunction and receiver, but reversed as to the attachment for contempt.

Martin scores a victory in one branch of the case and suffers a defeat in the other. The supreme court reverses Judge Clark's decision regarding the contempt case, and sustains his ruling touching the appointing of sustains his ruling touching the appointing of a receiver to take charge of cash assets.

The point here settled is one of great importance, not only to lawyers, but to business men. This confers upon a certain class of creditors important rights. It gives them the right to dispossess a debtor of fraudulently acquired money, even if the court has to take it out of his pocket. Hitherto it has been held that no process of law could reach a man's pocket and force him to relinquish its contents. This is a decision of far-reaching importance and will guide the lower courts in cases analogous to Martin's case.

The principle will not, however, be practically applied in this case, since Martin satisfied the court that he made an honest disposition of the money, paying his sister a just debt.

The Nicolson-Thomas Case Has Been Postponed.

IT WILL BE HEARD WEDNESDAY.

Courtroom Was Crowded, and the Crowd Was Disappointed - Dr. Nicolson's Friend Talks.

The Nicolson-Thomas fisticuff of Sunday on was a topic of general interest yes

It was very freely discussed and versions of the affair were as numerous as could be. Opinion was divided as to who had the best of it in the encounter, and developments in the case were watched with eagerness.

There has never been a larger police court audience than appeared yesterday afternoon. The room couldn't hold more than were present. Every one knew that the true status of the case would be brought out in the evidence and all were anxious to hear it.

But the case didn't have the wished-for

Before 2:30 o'clock people were seated in the police court awaiting patiently.

Then Recorder Andy Calhoun entered. For half an hour he was occupied with cases of Sunday drunks, while men of all classes were crowding to get near the railing when the case they were interested in should be

There were merchants, lawyers, doctors and even one minister crowding together with the motley mass that always finds an attraction in

When the defendants' names were called the scramble that ensued was amusing. A line several men deep was formed immediately outside of the bar, while peering above their heads were those standing upon the seats.

When the cries of "sit down" and "order" had ceased, Dr. Nicolson stood in front of Judge Calhoun's desk.

At the same time Mr. Thomas Leftwich, representing Dr. Thomas, addressed the court

His client remained seated.
"It is impossible," said he, "for us to proceed with the case this afternoon. The short interval of time since last evening has not allowed us to summon witnesses, and I have not been enabled to make any preparation in behalf of my client."

"How about it, doctor?" asked Recorder Calhoun, addressing Dr. Nicolson. "I am ready to go on," was the reply. "I have no lawyer and don't wish any. I am my own lawyer so far as that is concerned. I have had no more time than the other side and I am ready with my witnesses." 'There is a big difference," interposed Mr. Leftwich, turning to the court, "between bringing one's witnesses along with him to a fracas and having to hunt them up when they are unknown to a participant." "You can't go on with the case?" asked Judge Calhoun of the attorney.

'No, sir, we can't." "Then I'll set the trial of Dr. W. P. Nicolson and Dr. J. L. Thomas for Wednesday after-noon at 2:30 o'clock. The defendants and the witnesses in the case will be here at that

Both gentlemen arose and, with more than three-fourths of the audience, filed out of the Five minutes later the court was almost entrely cleared. A few policemen, a half-dozen defendants and as many witnesses remained, while Recorder Calhoun called the next case. The case against Dr. Grandy, charging him with interfering with an officer in the discharge of his duty, was also postponed until tomorrow afternoon and both cases will be ralled together.

A Card from Dr. Grandy.

To the Public—Dr. Thomas's statement in yester-day's Constitution to the effect that Dr. Nicolson's friends pulled Dr. Thomas off of him while the two were down, is absolutely faise. Dr. Nicolson was on top in the whole affair. The Journal's account today makes it appear that I interfered with the fight. I was taken to the station house on the charge of interfering with an officer who with the fight. I was taken to the station house on the charge of interfering with an officer who was trying to get Dr. Nicolson off of Dr. Thomas. This officer was in citizen's clothes and I did not know that he was a policeman.

I tried to prevent the officer from separating them and it is not likely that I would have done so, had not my friend, Dr. Nicolson, been getting the better of it.

Dr. L. B. Grandy.

the better of it. Dr. L. B. Grandy.

Both gentlemen were on the streets yesterday morning as usual.

Neither showed any signs of the unpleasant encounter of Sunday.

Dr. Nicolson was at his office early in the morning, and except when he was in police court was receiving or visiting his patients in his usualtpleasant, affable manner and happy his usual; pleasant, affable manner and happy smile.

"In your account of the encounter this morning," said a friend of Dr. Nicolson's yesterday who was an eye-witness to the difficulty, "you have done Dr. Nicolson an injustice. Dr. Nicolson did not strike Dr. Thomas first, neither did he attempt to. He approached Dr. Thomas intending to ask him to retract that card.

"Dr. Thomas told a party that he had bought a cane specially to use in event Dr. Nicolson approached him. He told the same party, too, that when he saw Dr. Grandy on the sidewalk he suspected that Dr. Nicolson was about! and reversed his stick. Mind you, he turned the big end of the stick from his hand before he saw the doctor.

"It's unnecessary for me to say that Dr. "It's unnecessary for me to say that Dr.

he turned the big end of the stick from his hand before he saw the doctor.

"It's unnecessary for me to say that Dr. Nicolson did not secrete himself in the stairway. No one who knows that gentleman would for a moment believe such a declaration. He is the soul of honor and not an assassin. When he says he took Dr. Stoney and Dr. Grandy along with instructions not to interfere unless a pistol was drawn by Dr. Thomas he says what every one who knows him will swear by. In fact, when he went he did not anticipate a tight. He intended to ask Dr. Thomas to withdraw his card and settle the trouble amicably.

"As to Dr. Nicolson being muddy and disfigured, that is all incorrect. When he approached Dr. Thomas the latter hit him with the came before a word had been spoken. Had he heard Dr. Nicolson for a minute there might have been no fight. The instant the cane went up for the blow Dr. Nicolson threw up his arm to ward off the blow, and then they grappled.

up his arm to ward off the blow, and then they grappled.

"Dr. Thomas never had Dr. Nicolson down, as has been stated. Of that there is evidence of an unimpeachable character, if the words of those present were not sufficient. Dr. Nicolson's coat shows mud on the left sleeve from the elbow down. Except that it is as clean as ever. His trousers have mud on the knees only. The mud on the sleeve is due to the fact that the doctor's left arm came in contact with the pavement when he put Dr. Thomas down. The sidewalk was muddy—we all remember the rainy day and if Dr. Nicolson had been underneath his back would certainly have been muddy.

been underneath his back would certainly have been muddy.

"I say this only as a matter of justice to Dr. Nicolson, who everybody knows is one of Atlanta's best, most honorable, quiet, gentlemanly citizens. I want to be understood as in no way reflecting on Dr. Thomas. As far as I know, he is entitled to the confidence of all, and is, I am sure, a good man. I hope the trouble may be adjusted without further bad feeling."

He spent one day at Mr. Nelson's home, and went from there to New York. He left Dr. Hunter, who went with him, at Mr. Nelson's home, and went from there to New York. He left Dr. Hunter, who went with him, at Mr. Nelson's home, and he is expected back tomorrow.

"I talked over all the matters connected with his coming to Georgia fully with Bishop Nelson," said Mr. Harrison, "and he thoroughly understands the situation. He has read all the newspaper clippings about the opposition to him in the convention, and had several that I had not seen. But they had little weight with him. We hope that the consecration will take place some time in January. Bishop Nelson intimated that he desired the consecration service to take place in Atlanta, and at St. Luke's church, But that matter is entirely in the hands of the standing committee."

Bishop Nelson has the right to choose any city in the diocese as his home, and it is given out on good authority that he will select Atlanta. It has been the home of his predecessors and he will no doubt select it as his.

AN ATLANTIAN ROBBED.

He Takes in New Orleans and Is Relieved of $150.

The New Orleans Evening News of Saturday tells an interesting story of the robbery of an Atlantian in that city Thursday night.

"Mr. R. E. L. Majors, of Atlanta, Ga.," says the story, "and a recent arrival in this city, complained to the third precinct station that he had been robbed. His story is as follows: he had been robbed. His story is as follows:
On Thursday night, in company of one John Kelly, alias Texas Kid, whom he had previously met, he went to Wenger's garden, at which place they arrived about 4 o'clock a. m., Majors having on his person at the time $150. They began imbibling freely with one of the inmates, and about 6 o'clock in the morning sought their lodgings, at Hood's, on St. Charles street. At about 12 o'clock noon the two arose, and Kelly asked Majors how much money he had, and upon examination Majors found that he had only $23 left out of the $150. As Kelly was patronizing the Turf exchange yesterday, Mapatronizing the Turf exchange yesterday, Majors came to the conclusion that his companion had robbed him. Kelly was arrested at Wenger's garden last night by Sergeant Hevron and Officer Hurley. The proper attidavit will be made."

Hives, pimples, boils, and other blood affections show themselves at this season. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures all such troubles by its powerful action upon the blood. Sold by all druggists.

Happy the play that wins the support of women and children, because there can be no reversal of their decision. Such a fortune has befallen "The Prince and the Pauper." It is a performance which should be looked at from the point of view which should be looked at from the point of view of youth. What a treat it would have been to the men and women of today could they have witnessed in nursery times such a vision as the one here created by the sympathetic natures of Mrs. Albry Sage Richardson and Elsie Leslie. Think, for instance, what a picture to brighten life is that of the little prince rushing in with drawn sword at the head of the troopers to rescue the lathful Sir Miles, who is so sorely pressed. "Improbable!" exclaims the grumpy old playgoer with vitiated tast as he gazes on the gallant exploit. Not at all, but the most realisticthing in nature to young eyes that have not yet looked behind the scenes of the stage or the world.

"The Fast Mail."

"The Fast Mail."

The Memphis Appeal-Avalanche, of October 6th, says of this popular play:
"Last night The Fast Mail" was seen for the first time in Memphis. Realism has been written about, but it has never been seen outside of this drama. The passage of the freight train, with its fourteen cars and brakeman on top, is so intensely realistic that every railroad man in the house—and there were many of them—fairly howled with delight. Then there was the fast mail snatching the mail bag as it passed the depot, the blowing up of the steamer St. Louis, the fails of Niagara, more realism, in short, than ever was heaped together in one play before on this earth.

"Of the actors it is really not necessary to speak. The realism alone is worth double the price of admission. But Mr. Nearille as Walter West, Mr. Jag Simmons as Sluth and Miss Thomas as Belva Ann, are all that the most exacting critic could require. To tones who have not seen 'The Fast Mail'. The Appeal-Avalanche's advice is to see it." "The Fast Mail."

A Veteran in the Business.

After thirty years' experience in the drug business, I can truthfully say that I have never seen a remedy equal to Tetterine for skin diseases. A few applications have made a complete cure of Tetter on my hands, which I had almost despaired of ever curing. I also find it unequaled for chapped and rough skin. I cheerfully recommend it to the public. Yours truly.

THE NEW YORK MARKET. The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, November 23.—The stock market today was an irregular one, and the movements were contradictory among the leading stocks, but there was a real weakness nowhere but in the Coalers, and the net result of the day' operations is to leave a great majority of the list only slightly changed from their last week's figures. A notable feature of the trading was the absence of buying orders from the bull party who operated so boldly last week, and discovering this the bears concentrated their efforts upon coal stocks, and these stocks show considerable losses. Vanderbilt and Grangers were strong.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular. NEW YORK, November 23-[Special.]-Foreign con

NEW YORK, November 23—(Special.)—Foreign consumers of cotton are evidehily disposed to err upon the side of prudenes and secure at least a portion of their supply upon the basis of present prices. Spot sales in Liverpool this morning were 12,000 bales. Futures by 3 o'clock had advanced from 2625-64d, closing finally firm, although the nervousness of the mar-Futures by 3 o'clock had advanced from 263-64d, closing finally firm, although the nervousness of the market was shown in several intermediate recessions and advances. Here, however, attention is more naturally centered upon the possibilities of the supply rather than upon the dimensions of the demand; and, although the strength of Liverpool induced an improvement of about 3 psints at the opening, it was not maintained, and the market gradually eased away as the figures of the receipts rolled up another enormous total again, bringing the total of crop in sight still further ahead of last year. Receipts for the day promise to be 79,000 bales. Under these influences the market by 2 o'clock was seiling at Saturday's figures. While, however, the bulls cannot find much encouragement for the present in the port movement, the interior towns commence to show a decided failing off. The total receipts at Memphis, St. Louis and Augusta were about 30 under last year, and estimates for today were relatively as light. The interruption of the wire service, as a result of today's storms, makes it impossible to get exact figures. One of our correspondents, operating extensively in Georgia and South Carolina, sends very exact figures of the receipts and production in South Carolina and northwestern Georgia, indicating a shortage of 25 per cent as compared with last year. The closing of the market was steady about 4 points above the lowest. The feeling in favor of the market seems to be gathering strength, and lighter receipts mean higher prices.

THE STATE CAPITOL.

Things That Transpired at the Capitol Yesterday.

THE SMALLPOX SCARE IS OVER,

And Is Under the Control of the Govern-ment Officials—The Railroad Com-mission Meets Today.

The smallpox scare at Harris Neck, Liberty county, has somewhat abated, and the dwellers along the coast feel greatly relieved.

The people of Savannah are breathing much easier, now that the government officials have the dread disease under control, and there are no further fears of it reaching that city.

From fifty to sixty cases, in all, have been reported, but few deaths have resulted. The disease does not seem to be as malignant and deadly as usual. As to the deaths the information is very meager, as there is no tele-graphic communication with Harris Neck, and few people are so venturesome as to go into the infected section hunting news.

Barracks and hospitals for the afflicted will be built at once by the government and rations farnished them.

The governor yesterday received the following telegram from Surgeon General Walter Wyman, explaining the situation:

WASHINGTON, November 22.—Governor Northen:
Orders have been given to furnish rations to the Orders have been given to furnish rations to the starving. Should a proclamation become necessary, will notify you. Complete measures to have hospitals and temporary barracks erected and supplies furnished. Have authorized revenue cutter Boutwell to carry supplies from Savannah.

the disease is located—Liberty and McIntosh—have made no request upon the governor to issue a proclamation for the strict enforcement of quarantine regulations, and it is inferred from their failure to do so that their uneasiness

Adjutant General Kell yesterday received several resignations from, and issued several commissions to, members of different military companies in the state.

Quite a number of resignations have been sent in from officers of military companies, during the past few weeks, and It is said many of them were caused by some unpleasant oc-currence during the summer encampment at Chickamauga. First Lieutenant Ben Goldsmith, of the Gate City Guard, who was elected to succeed Lieutenant Kendrick, who was elected to the captaincy of that company, received his commission yesterday.

A commission was also issued to First Lieutenant W. M. Fulcher, of the Burke Light Infantry, who was recently elected to that place. Also a commission to J. H. White-H. W. Little, second lieutenant of the same company.
H. W. Little, second lieutenant of the Southern Rifles, of Talbotton, was commissioned yesterday.

The resignation of First Lieutenant Frank

The resignation of First Lieutenant Frank S. Spencer, of the Atlanta Riftes, was received by the adjutant general yesterday, and will be acted upon at once. The resignation is a very brief document, and no reason is given why Lieutenant Spencer leaves the company.

The resignation of T. J. Buchan, captain of the Eastman Volunteers, of Eastman, Ga., was also received. No reasons for resigning are given by Captain Buchan. F. W. Armstrong, second lieutenant of the Eastman Volunteers, also resigns, without assigning any reasons therefor.

The Commission Meets. There will be a meeting of the railroad com-mission today, and some very important mat-ters will come up for adjudication by that body.

At the last session of the legislature a bill was passed extending the jurisdiction of the railroad commission, so as to place telegraph and express companies under its supervision on the same footing with railroads.

The commission will proceed today to exercise this authority, and has invited the head officials of these companies to appear at the meeting today and give such information as the commission may wish concerning rates, etc. If the rates are not satisfactory to the commission, they will be regulated.

Several other matters may come up, and will be disposed of.

To Separate the Races.

White and colored convicts in the Georgia enitentiary camps will not be housed together any more.

This is the result of a law passed by the last

The law prohibits the chaining $\eta$ or working together in the same camps white and colored couvicts. Principal Keeper of the Penitentiary Jones yesterday issued an order for the enforcement of this law, to the convict lessees of the state.

Arbor Day.

"Arbor Day" is near at hand and it will be generally observed in Georgia, especially by college boys and school children of the state.

State School Commissioner Bradwell will issue a circular in a day or so giving an appropriate programme of exercises for the day.

SLOAN'S CIRCULARS.

The Lawyers Want to Bring the Black mailer to Georgia. The libelous circular of Sloan, who calls his concern the Continental Collection Union, is still all the talk among the legal fraternity.

The lawyers whose names are down on Sloan's list are still mad and want somebody to suggest a plan by which Sloan can be brought to this state and punished as he deserves to be.

brought to this state and punished as he deserves to be.

There is now a requisition in the hands of Governor Campbell, of Ohio, from ex-Governor Gordon, for the arrest of the blackmailer, and the aggreeved attorneys hope to have him brought to Georgia on 1t yet.

Several plans to bring Sloan here have been suggested. One is to employ a good detective and send him to Ohio, and trust to his wit and to luck to bring the criminal to Georgia.

They are determined to have him brought to justice if possible.

They are determined to have him brought to justice if possible.

The story of the circular has been printed all over the south, and created no little sensation. These circulars have been printed twice, and if something cannot be done with Sloan there will be no limit to his deviltry.

MAKE A BOLD ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE.

It Is Discovered in the Nick of Time by Savannah Detective—The Two Fellows Placed in Chains.

Bob Badger and John Taylor, two notorious prisoners in Fulton county jail, made a dar-ing and almost successful attempt at escape

It was thwarted by a timely discovery of Detective Basch, of Savannah.

Together with Sheriff Morrow, the gentle man was walking on the second floor of the rear of the jail, inspecting the quarters. He looked into cell No. 19, as he had done in all of the others, and his attention was attracted by what looked like a large cobweb.

With his cane Detective Basch brushed at it and there fell at his feet a saw, a sharp shoe spring and a piece of cloth.

The two officials were surprised.

Further investigation was immediately made and a large hole, sufficient to admit a man's body, was discovered. A search about the room showed some fat, by which the saw had been sharpened, and four blankets.

The two inmates of the cell, Badger and Taylor, would have crawled through the open-ing, admitting them among the rafters. Access to the roof would have then proven

Strips of the blankets, tied together, would have served to lower them to the ground and complete the work.

Everything was in readiness for the men to last night. Today was set for their trial, and the time was a most opportune one for them to gain their liberty.

The prisoners were soon brought face to face with their work and asked about it. Of course they denied it, but made no explanations about the instruments or the unusual number of blankets, declaring that they knew nothing about them and had made no attempt to escape.

They were immediately locked up in another cell, chained to the floor and partly chained to one another, and in this way they will be kept hereafter during their incarceration in the county prison.

will be kept hereafter during their incarceration in the county prison.

Both prisoners are negroes and they are charged with burglary. Bob Badger is one of the most familiar darkies about the jail, having been in the hands of jailers and penitentiary guards almost continually for a number of years. He has given repeated trouble to the jailers and during his former incarceration did damage to the amount of more than one hundred dollars.

Three weeks ago he was again lodged in his

Three weeks ago he was again lodged in his old cell, and his actions since then were not an exception to the rule with him. Mischief of a serious kind has all along been predicted.

Detective Basch's discovery was unusually timely, and to that alone is due the failure of the transport the two accused burglars to regain their lib

A more careful watch than ever will be made about the jail. This is the second attempted escape come upon within the past five days.

25 VERY VALUABLE LOTS 25 Tuesday, Dec. 1st, 1891, 10 a.m. On the Premises.

On the Premises.

This includes some of the most valuable and destrable property in Atlanta—right in the very heart of the city. Four storehouse, lots from opposite the postofice and opera house. When the new stleel bridge isjfinished on Forsyth street no real estate in Atlanta will be worth more per front foot than the property we now offer to the highest bidder. Now is a most opportune time to buy, for 'tis an admitted fact that Atlanta property enhances in value annually. The substantial brick building on the corner of Forsyth and Walton streets is yielding a handsome income at present. The 21 vacant lots in Inman Park are shaded with beautiful native oaks. Just the place for a gentleman to make an elegant home.

Edgewood avenue runs due east from the center of the city to Inman Park, passing directly through 21 of these lots. On it is the most perfect system of electric cars to be found in the United States and one of the grandest drives in the city. More expensive and handsome buildings are to be seen on this beautiful thorough are than upon any line of street leading from the center of Atlanta. One building alone when completed is to cost a cool million dollars. You may never have so favurable an opportunity to buy such property as this again. Then attend the sale and secure your family a first-class location on a high and healthful ridge where the surroundings are choice and the real estate will continue to enhance for years to come. Every lot will be sold to the highest bidder. Titles indisputable. Terms cash. Remember the Forsyth street lots are in the same block with the Seltzer stores that I sold to eager purchasers at fair prices in 1890, our oldest citizens paying the best prices and securing the lots.
